SANLAKBAY

Oscar Ante Lay Pastoral Formation

Introduction

The Inter-Congregational Theological Center (ICTC) is a theological institution that aims to form, educate, and train consecrated persons, diocesan seminarians, and lay who are interested to uphold the institution's pastorally-oriented theological vision. ICTC is committed to form, educate, and train persons who will be resolute pastoral agents, and who, while aspiring to follow and ready to be configured to Christ the Good Shepherd, are deeply rooted in the Filipino culture and values, catalysts for social transformation, mission-oriented, ecumenical, open to interreligious dialogue and respectful of multi-culturality in the context of Asia and responsive to the challenge of creating a universal culture of social love. From the very beginning, ICTC was conceived not as an institution but as means to achieve a dream for the Church and society seeking transformation inspired by the message of the Reign of Jesus of Nazareth. In 1986 a number of major superiors attending the annual meeting of the Association of Major Religious Superiors in the Philippines (AMRSP) informally exchanged views among themselves and toyed with the idea of putting up an alternative theological school/formation that would cater and respond to the particular needs and orientation of their congregations. The school would stress contextualized theology rooted in the life and struggle of our people, and discovering the particular charism of each congregations in the service of this theology. And while the theological formation would be for religious, it would also be geared towards preparing those who wished to be accepted in the Major Orders.

The Major Superiors who joined ICTC in 1988 were the Redemptorists (CSsR), and the Order of Carmelites (O.Carm.). The Order of Friars Minor (OFM) joined ICTC in 1989.

ICTC has three interrelated program: academic, pastoral and spirituality. Throughout the years, ICTC have been in close partnership with the Our Lady of the Angels Seminary with regard to its academic program and formation while it runs its pastoral and spirituality programs. Part of its pastoral program is to offer basic theological and pastoral formation and training designed for lay people.

This year, 2025, ICTC aspires to intensify its formation program designed for lay people. Hence SANLAKBAY will be launched on November 12, 2025 to also commemorate Oscar A. Ante, OFM who had been a staunch advocate for the empowerment of lay people and who was a dedicated Director of ICTC.

The Program

Sanlakbay is a contraction of two Filipino words, SAN (short for "one" or "common") and LAKBAY ("journey"). Sanlakbay brings to the fore of our consciousness that theological formation, whether it is geared towards presbyteral ordination, the consecrated life or lay empowerment is a common journey of the entire People of God and not the exclusive domain of specialists. Sanlakbay bears the stamp and seeks to live out the spirit of synodality in the realm of theological formation, specifically in the field of lay pastoral formation.

Background and Rationale

Sanlakbay is continuous with the previous initiatives of ICTC (Inter-Congregational Theological Center), albeit inchoate and sporadic, to respond to the educational and training needs of its area partners in communities into which its students under formation are deployed for immersion and actual pastoral engagement. Sanlakbay seeks to pick up where its previous initiatives left off but in a more sustained and systematic manner.

General Objective

Generally, Sanlakbay has been designed to respond to educational, formational and training needs of ICTC's area partners (and other interested lay people) with the view to capacitating and empowering them to participate in the Mission of the Church thereby giving flesh and blood to the apostolate and spirituality of the laity.

Specific Objectives

To assist ICTC's area partners (and other interested lay people) in consolidating and sustaining their pastoral engagements which they initiated in collaboration with the school and its students under formation.

To help form and train actual and potential pastoral agents at the grassroots level to ensure self-reliance, self-determination and the self-continuity of their ecclesial communities, pastoral programs and organizations affiliated with them.

To provide a venue for lay formation which is at once contextual and pastorally oriented and grounded in the fundamental themes of the faith and keen on such basic pastoral competencies as community building, doing theology, initiating community projects and engaging in the liturgical ministry.

Administrative Set-up

Sanlakbay is a special program under the office of the Dean of Studies and directly accountable to the same office and the Council of Provincials. It shall be overseen by a Program Coordinator.
